Hi Manish Ji,

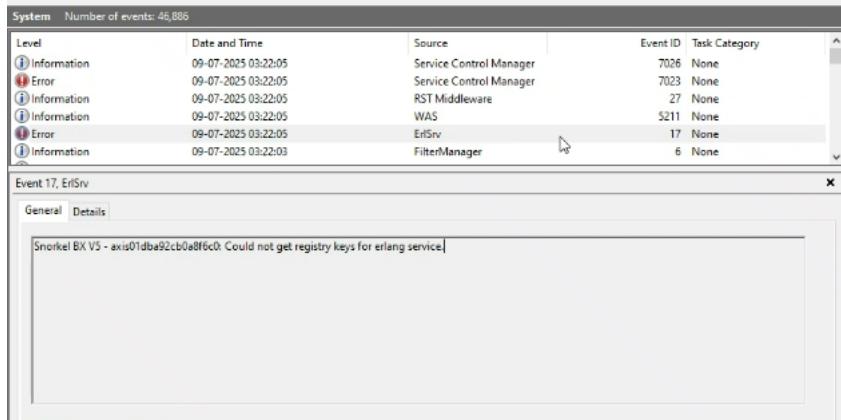

Please find RCA,

Issue statement - Snorkel service was unable to auto-restart after reboot.

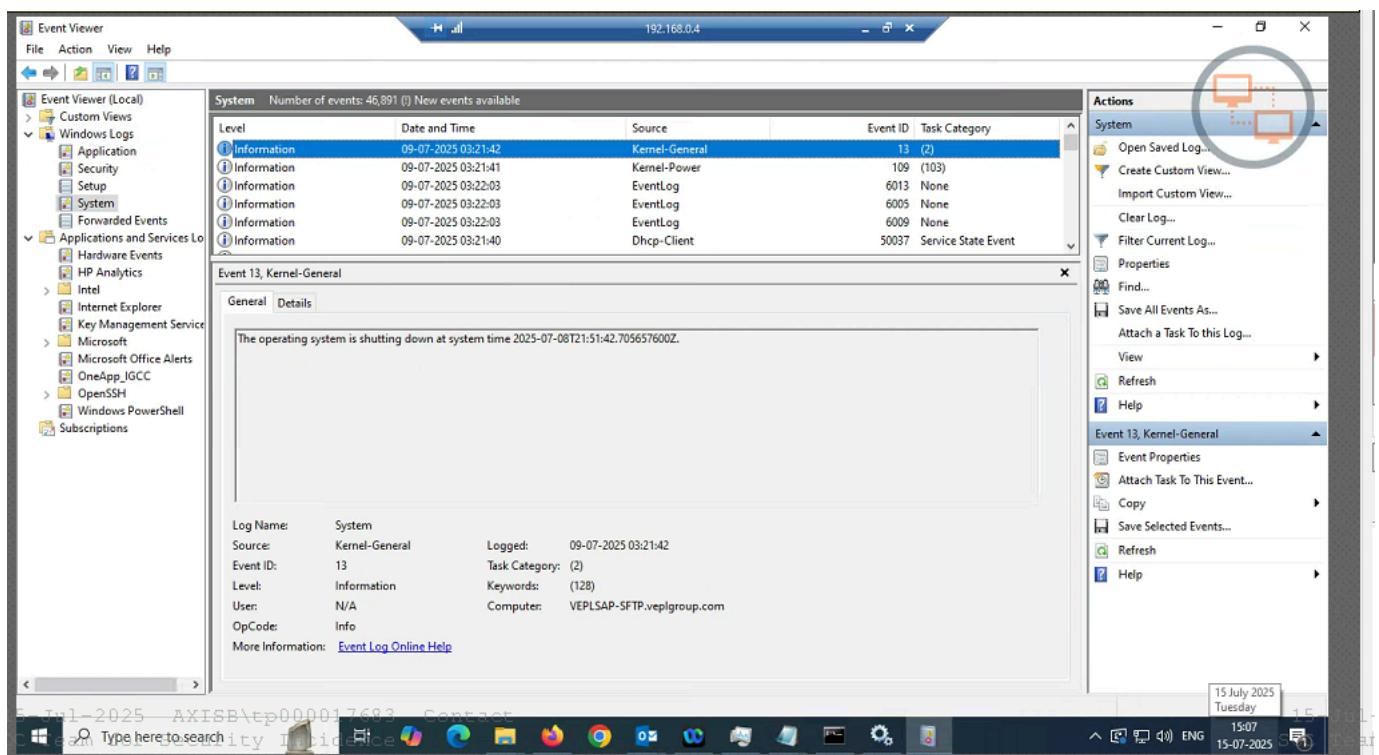

RCA:

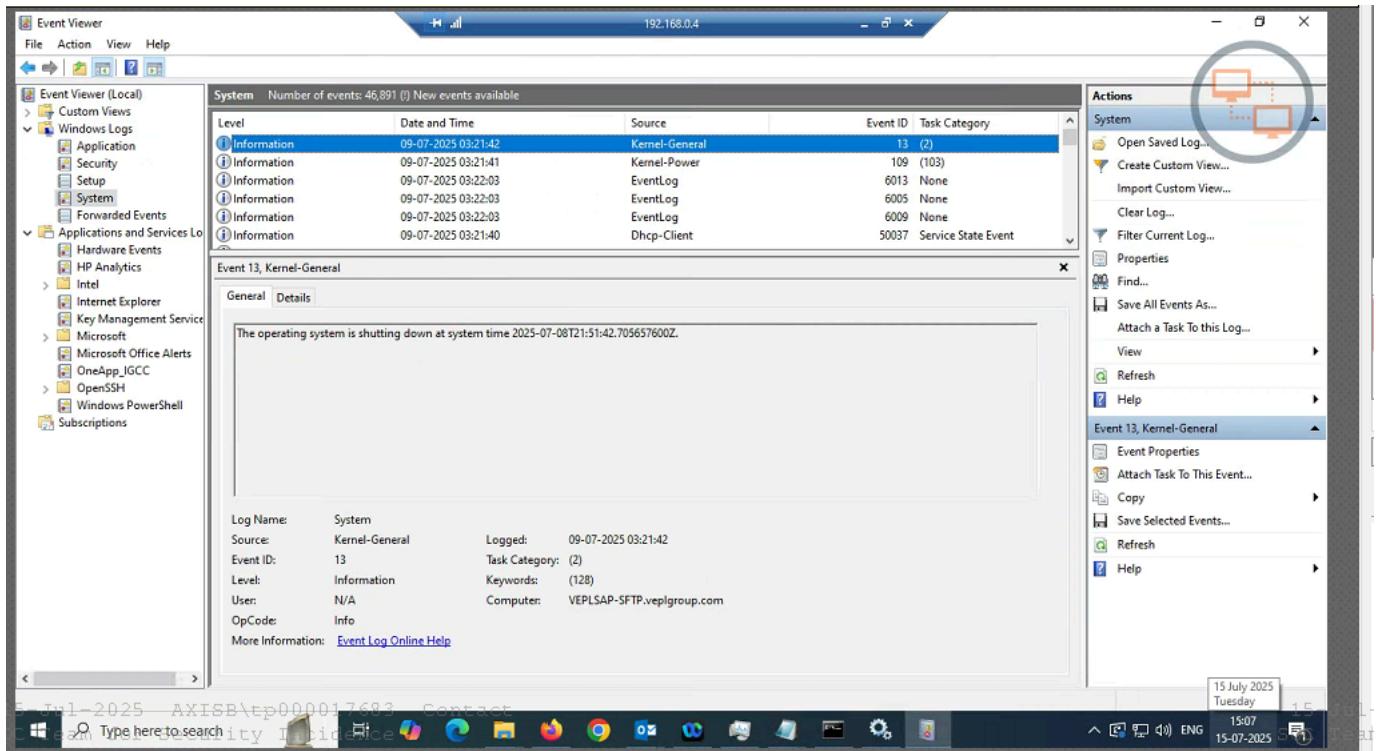

1. As per troubleshooting , we found out that the snorkel auto-restart failed due to change in windows user running the service on server. New user runn which agent was unable to read the registry key during auto-restart and failed to restart the service.

2. Below are the event log details from your server which state that the snorkel agent stopped on 9th July at 03:22:05, due to following error - "Could not the windows user used now was not 'ADMINISTRATOR', which was used earlier during installation.

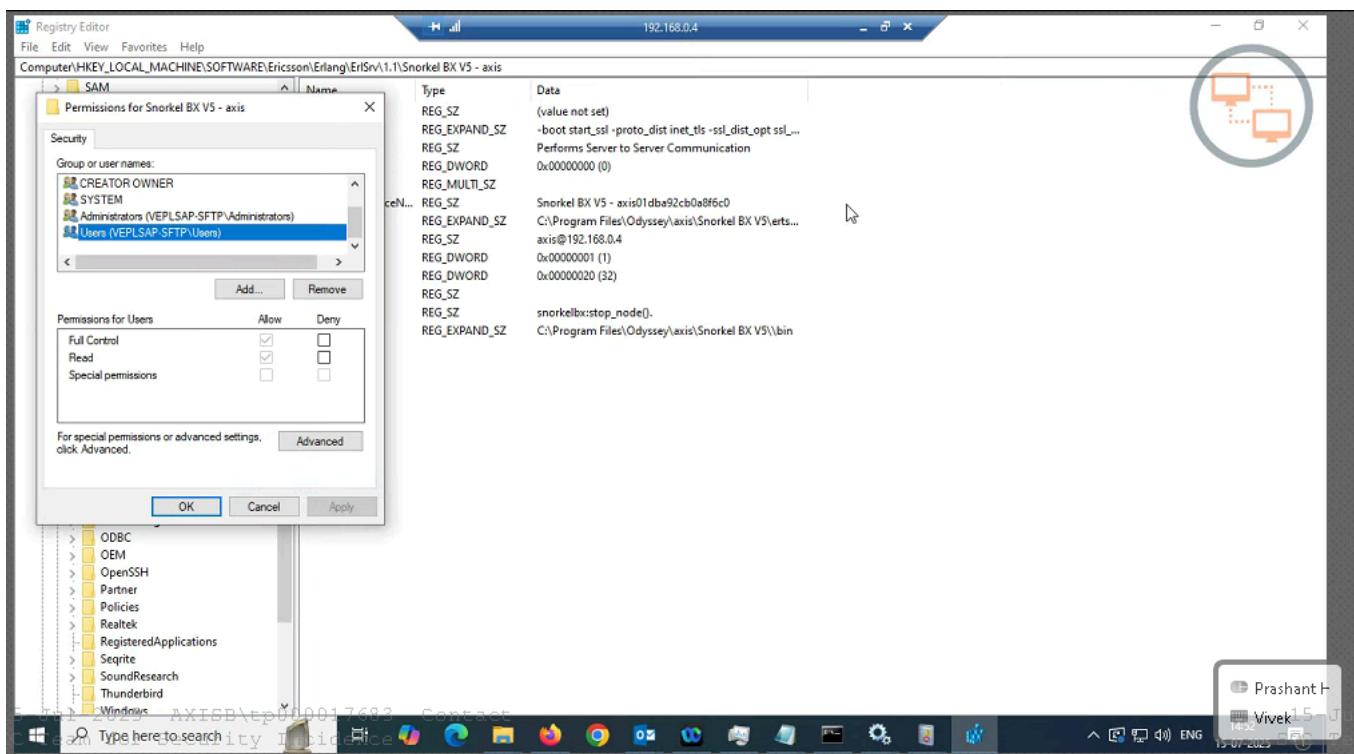

3. In addition to this we have observed that before snorkel stopped, a windows update and reboot activity was performed on server. Due to which snorkel lack of permission as mentioned in above observations.

4. We have now provided the full permission of snorkel registry to both new users on server. The permission snap is provided below.

Recommendation : Kindly note we have provided the necessary permissions to new windows user now.

It is recommended to avoid any permission level change or on user running the snorkel service in windows system. Also, it is recommended to start-stop the Snorkel service only. Any failure to follow recommendation will result in such cases.

Thanks & Regards,
Atul Pisal
